'WeAllGoDownTogether'

Pending Commentary on The Crown Of Creation

The Crown of Creation is hanging by a thread.

A series of bleached, tinted and re-exposed Cyanotypes provide lyrical commentary on the Climate Crisis. Together they form a revolving landscape of meltdown.

All of us, arguably and allegedly the Crown of Creation, are pulled asunder by our own inventions, represented by single use plastic garbage pooling in a Cyanotype puddle collecting on the ground. Helplessly we reach for the sky as we drown in what we made.

The title of this piece is a nod to a song by the band The Decemberists called "We Both Go Down Together".

Viewers are encouraged to scan the QR code floating in the puddle with their phone cameras to listen to a YouTube rendition of the song .
